

Too Many Chefs

Cute kids' aprons, and where to wear them

March 11, 2010

As many of us are rediscovering a love for home cooking, the once stifling apron is back in favor. (And don't even get us started on the inexplicable obsession toddler boys and girls have with aprons.) So we got pretty excited when we discovered the adorable mom-and-me apron sets from Jessie Steele. It's hard to pick a favorite, though we're kind of partial to the cupcake version that Charlotte sports in the upcoming Sex and the City 2 movie (pictured). The kids' versions, which skew to the girly side, are $22.95 at jessiesteele.com.

Cooking Monsters at apple seeds, for 2-5 year-olds, is part art class, part math and part really good lunch. Kids measure and mix ingredients to create dishes from around the world using local, fresh and seasonal ingredients. They might make Mexican black bean avocado "boats," or vegetable sushi rolls and "koi pond" soup. $690 for non-members.

appleseedsnyc.com

